FOREWORD

History of one's country is interesting, but history of one's descendants and family is something to be cherished. The information collected and given in this book took time and effort on the part of the author, Mrs. Robert Conner, who is my sister. One of her hobbies was securing data for our family records which gives from the years 1732 to 1959.

Each family connected is grateful for this genealogy. Because of this book comes out from the garden of memories the history of my parents and grandparents as well as other relatives.

PREFACE

It has been a privilege to collect data and write a recorded family history. The purpose was to preserve family records and history of our descendants. May we cherish the memory of those who have gone on and what they have contributed to our heritage.

Also, may our future generations be proud of our achievements and what we have contributed to our family history.

This could not have been accomplished without help and thanks to all who have assisted. Especially, for using information on the Bright Family, found in Georgie Hopkins Ford book entitled, "Kentucky Brights and their Kin".

Albertus and Patience (Hopkins) Bright were the great, great grandfather and grandmother of Mattie Caddel Yancy. Albertus was born October 7, 1732 and died March 12, 1824, Shelby County, Kentucky. He married Patience Hopkins, who was born December 25, 1732 and died in September, 1813 at Shelby County Kentucky.

Albertus Bright lived in Virginia and South Carolina before moving to Kentucky. They came to Kentucky in 1788 and first settled at Bryan's Station, Fayette County. They later moved to Shelby County, Kentucky and settled on a farm two miles south of Eminence, Kentucky and near Old Fox Run Baptist church. They were buried in a grove on their farm near the church.

In 1848 William Bright and his wife Eleanor moved from Kentucky to Texas. They took with them their slaves and eight sons and daughters, two children, Evaline and James D. remained in Kentucky. One daughter died two years before. They were farmers and expected to farm in their new homes, so they brought with them their wagons, teams and farming implements. Their household goods and supplies were taken to Louisville on wagons and then everything and everyone took passage on a boat on the Ohio down the Mississippi, and from the Mississippi to the Red River on to Shreveport, Louisiana.

They left the boat and took passage in the wagon again. The intended destination was Dallas, Texas about two hundred miles west of Shreveport, but a mistake was made and when they traveled the estimated distance they found themselves about sixty miles south of Dallas in Navarro County and ten miles south of Corsicana, Texas. There they acquired land and went through hardships of pioneers. The sons were all farmers but handy with tools.

The Caddel or Caddell Family

The Caddel name originally was spelled with one L, as the years went by the double L has been added. Some still prefer the one L, however, the majority of the families now are using the double L.

The Caddel's originally came from North Carolina, then moved to Tuscaloosa, Alabama and to Texas in 1834, while Texas was still a Republic, settling on a league of land in de Zavala's Colony. The Caddel's are Scot-Irish.

A VISIT TO THE OLD HOMESTEAD

By Joseph A. Caddell

I returned to my old home,
That once I knew so well,
And looked with wonder and surprise,
At the place I use to dwell.

I viewed the ground where I had played,
Through all my younger days,
But not the house in which I dwelt
T'was gone from public gaze.

As I looked at things familiar,
It seemed like I was at home,
But then I thought of absent friends,
Like me, had left to roam.

It's only a few years since we left,
But O what a noted change,
Everything quite different now,
It seems so very strange.

The old familiar faces
Are in the distant West,
That is the most of them
The others gone to rest.

I wandered to the old graveyard,
Where many friends are laid,
And thought how soon that death would come,
No matter where we stayed.

The grass had covered O'r the graves,
The bushes growing high,
And briars clustered round the tombs
That showed no friends were nigh.

Our old friends are missing now,
Except a few,
If a few short years can change so much,
What can a hundred do?

MOTHER

(In memory of Mrs Sarah Caddell)

By Joseph A. Caddell)

Dear Mother is gone,
That kind loving friend,
Who loved me from infancy.
We will not see her again.

My heart goes back
To my childhood days,
When Mother would guide me
In all of my ways.

It would be a great joy
And comfort to me,
If only once more
Her form I could see.

It's four long years
Since I saw her dear face,
I'll always remember
The time and place.

She married again
One bright summer day
And in a short time
She had moved far away.

And then for four years
She wrote letters to me,
Saying life was as pleasant
As any could be.

But then without warning,
A sad letter came,
Saying she was buried,
It was dear Mother's name.

Thinking she was well,
It was sad news to me,
It was hard to realize,
Oh how could it be.

Be kind to your mother,
While here upon earth,
Don't wait till she is dead,
To think of her worth.

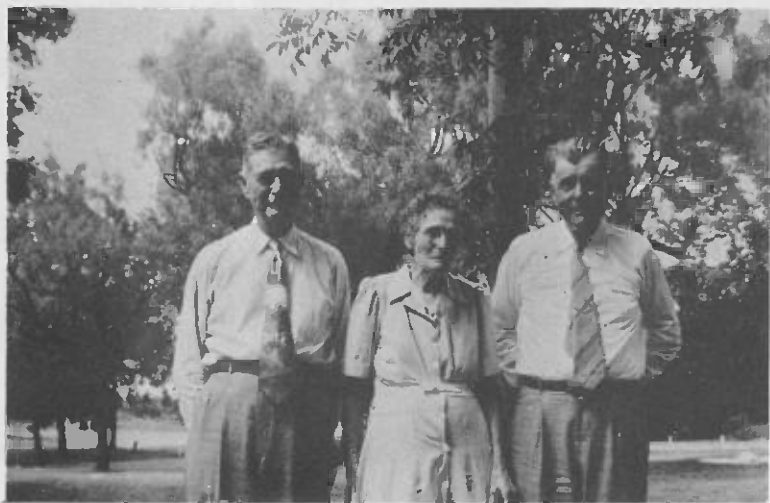

If I could have been there,
And took that old hand,
And kissed her dear face,
I'd be a happier man.

If I could have given medicine
Or raised up her head
Or done anything for her,
Before she was dead.

But now she is gone,
I'll remember her love
And pray for her children
To meet her above.

John Hammett
1875
Cowboy

John Hammett was born May 28, 1875, in Lampasas County, Texas. Son of Sarah Caddell and grandson of Andy Caddell. John started punching cows in childhood, his father trained him and he started working for a neighbor, Henry Roder. When he was fourteen years old, he landed his first job with a big company, the Littlefield Cattle Company, ranging east to Roswell, New Mexico. When this company closed three years later he joined with the Diamond A, on the Hondo River, west of Roswell, where Captain Burton C. Mossman, an original Arizona Ranger was Wagon Boss.

In 1893 a herd of 5,000 two-year-old steers of mixed brands were assembled at Del Rio, Texas for trailing to Canadian line by way of Lamar, Colorado under Sug Robertson. In those days, he recalls, "There wasn't a fence from the Rio Grande to the Canadian Border, except around little homesteads, here and there. Open range". On that ride, he went as far as the Milk River in Northern Montana, and never opened a gate all the way."

From the Milk River, John came down to the Crow Reservation of southern Montana in 1894 and at the age of 19, went to work for the Custer Cattle Company, McCormick, Johnson and Powers, owners, branding 7 Bar 7. Except for a short time around Thermopolis, Wyoming, he has been in the Reservation country, punching cows and is still at the age of 83. John is with the Antler Ranch of Matt Tschirgi, on the Little Big Horn of Custer massacre fame. During the 50 years from 1898 to 1948, he never missed a day from his profession.

The 7 Bar 7 ran upwards of 25,000 cattle, from which John would cut 450 head a month under government contracts to feed the Indians and the militia.

"Steaks were steaks in those days, none of this modern baby beef stuff. The price was 4½ cents a pound.

In April, 1896, he tangled with a pack of Canadian outlaws in the Missouri Brakes, one hundred and twenty-five miles from the nearest human habitation. In exchange of shots that followed, John caught a bullet in his right forearm, which lodged in the shoulder. A companion used their only first aid, a torn-up shirt tail, but it worked and he never had the slug removed. He lets his friends feel it and try to guess the caliber.

During the Boer War years of 1899-1902, the Custer Company joined with other ranches in providing horses for the British calvary. These had to be four-year-olds, "ridden" horses and were delivered at Brush, Colorado for $65 to $80 a head under contracts let by M. Moncrieffe of Big Horn, near Sheridan, Wyoming, representing the British.

To "break" these horses, John and the other cowpokes would ride them three times and let the ocean voyage do the rest."

On a trip to Brush with a consignment of horses, John met and was entertained by Theodore Roosevelt and his daughter, Alice. "She was real nice, and we got on fine," he reports. Theodore guessed that the horses were so wild, they could kill more British than Boers.

The 7 Bar 7 closed out in 1906, and for the next ten years he worked for the Flying E of B. K. Hysham, running 40,000 head. He also worked for Smith Brothers of Hardin, Montana, one of the large steer outfits operating on the "Ceded Strip", branding Bar Z Bar, and the Quarter-circle ZL of Mack Daniels. When the Quarter-circle ZL went to Frank Heinrich, John went too.

Cupid slipped into John's life in 1920, when he made a trip to Kansas with a shipment of cattle. He found his future wife, quite naturally, in a cow pasture and spread his loop for her. Married on November 24, 1920. They have six children, two sons, four daughters, and eleven grandchildren.

John later returned to the Crow Reservation and worked for the Dana Cattle Company until 1937. Ed Danna sold to Charles Miller and he worked another ten years under the Birdhead brand until it was sold in 1948.

Since then he has been with the Antler Ranch of Tschirgi, at Wyola, Montana. He is now 83 years old and still active and you will find him doing business as usual, saddling up a bronc, branding or shipping cattle, or at home in Wyola, Montana. He is called, "Montana's Dean of the Range". There's no Hollywood glamour to John Hammett but if you are looking for the "real thing" in rugged cow punchers, he's it according to Edmund Randolph of the Denver Post." For he has ridden more miles, punched more cows and been in more odd situations than all the screen heroes who ever passed before a camera put together."

John is spry and alert and keeps informed about the satellites and looks forward to moon travel." They'll get there some day, and when they do I hope they don't find it all fenced up but some more open range.

John's health remains rugged, his eyes clear and piercing. It's rumored around the ranch lately that he suspected arthritis and decided on an X-ray. The Doctor said, "No sign of arthritis, but there's a bullet in your shoulder." He had forgotten about the one he received when he was 21 years old.

MOTHER

(In memory of Lizzie Mitchell)
Who died October 1, 1925

By

A daughter, Ila Mitchell Conner

Years have passed, but thoughts of you I've kept,
And many dreams I have had as I slept.
But memories of our dear home,
Will forever with me stay.
Memories of your love,
And your kindness every day.

You watched o'er us when we were ill,
With never a tiring will,
And o'ft times your needs were denied,
So our wants might be supplied.

Oh how thankful we should be,
For sacrifices you made, we see.
And the patience and love you had each day,
For such blessings we can never repay.

No matter what we did,
Or what we said,
Your love was always the same.
And may we never bring dishonor to your name.

FATHER

(In memory of M. L. Mitchell)
Who died March 18, 1936

By

A daughter, Ila Mitchell Conner

When you passed away,
There was another vacant place that day.
Mother had gone on before,
The joy of our home was never more.

Yet, while you lived,
Your heart was still sad,
Both places for us you filled.
And because of that we're glad.

Doing for others was your delight,
Yourself you would deny,
For work you would never slight,
No matter what it would imply.

How thankful, we are for a Dad, who was good and true.
For one who lived a noble and useful life,
Your faithfulness to God and Church we knew,
May we live a life that will be as true.

IN MEMORY OF AUNT MAY

(Mrs. Howard Mitchell passed away Sept. 5, 1958)

By Ila Mitchell Conner

Our dear one has gone away,
One who will be missed each day.
The hearts that loved you dearly,
Only heard a parting sigh.

We will miss you because you were so kind and true.
And your thoughtfulness of others we knew.
Your devotion to your home and family,
Made them know that you loved them dearly:

Fond memories of you will never dim.
We can see you still.
Your friendly smile and cherry voice.
Now gone, because of God's own will.

But while life remains, each will ever think of you,
For you are still within our hearts.
And we shall never forget you,
Till we meet no more to part.

IN MEMORY OF RAYMOND L. MITCHELL

By

Ila Mitchell Conner

Since he passed away, our hearts have been made sad,
Yet, many thoughts each day, have made us glad,
Because of the noble and courageous life he lived,
It has brought back many memories that will not be stilled.

While fond memories of his childhood linger instead,
Of many times he worked and played,
Then off to school he went alone,
To seek the knowledge that made him go on.

Reading was his favorite,
It made him stay up at night,
Which gave him incite,
And helped him to do right.

Then to college he was sent,
To prepare himself for more,
Working and studying as he went,
He soon had made the score.

His aim was always onward,
To other Universities he went,
With a Dr's degree intent
He worked and studied hard.

Then as a chemist, he became,
His purpose was never to shirk,
Hours overtime he spent at work
To complete experiments that might be fame.

Yet fame he did not acclaim,
He could always be found at his lab desk,
Working as a chemist he was always the same,
Very quiet and soft-spoken was picturesque.

But his home and family meant the most,
The love and kindness he gave,
Helped each to know how brave
He lived to the last.

IN MEMORY OF DANIEL YANCY

(Who Died April 12, 1945)

By Ila Mitchell Conner

He was only a lad,
Yet duty's call was sad.
In the States, only a few months training,
And overseas he goes not complaining.

To fight for our native land,
And protect us, so we might withstand.
He gave his all,
So that our country might not fall.

The sacrifices he knew,
When folks and home he bid adieu,
To fight for us, he was brave,
To save others, his life he gave.

On the battlefield in 1945, he fell in pain,
Unknowing that he had a part in victory's gain.
He died that hour in Germany for a cause he held divine,
And was buried in Holland at an American National Shrine.
